

New decade. New opportunities.

Where would you like to be professionally?

Are you interested in a career with the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS)? As the largest child protective services agency in the nation, DCFS is responsible for ensuring the safety of more than 2 million children across 88 diverse cities in Los Angeles County. DCFS is looking for individuals committed to ensuring the safety and well-being of the children, youth, non-minor dependents and families they serve. Consider registering to attend the virtual information sessions where the Department of Children and Family Services will provide you with information regarding a career with their agency. Each information session will provide you with a wealth of information so please consider attending more than one. Most of all, we hope you'll discover your career path with DCFS (with an emphasis on the Antelope Valley).
